Miss Barbara Tilley—

Striding purposefully down the field, Miss Tilley critically observes her students' soccer game at the far end of the field.

Through the years, Cary has developed a reputation for its excellence in athletics and its loyal school spirit. Credit for this achievement has deservedly been given to the Physical Education department and coaching staff. However, one person's contributions, in particular, are worthy of being singled out above the others.

This faculty member has been an important motivating force behind Cary's athletic attainments and was responsible for the introduction of girls' intramural sports when Cary girls were prohibited from participating in competitive sports with other schools. In addition to this, she has willingly exerted much time and effort while serving as sponsors for the Freshman class, Sophomore class, and the varsity cheerleading squad.

For your unceasing, energetic contributions to Cary High School and your genuine concern for its students, we dedicate YRAC '69 to you, MISS BARBARA TILLEY.

STUDENT LIFE

School is a student's life—
Eight hours a day, five days a week, nine months of the year, a student is bound to his school.
In such a cast form
Opportunities abound for youth to meet and experience friendship, challenges, distress, and success.
Affinity to others and ensuing responsibilities round neophytes into maturing adults.

Sheila Moore and Jeanne Turner perform their last act as editors of the annual by distributing year-books.

As the school year drew to a close, the annual awards assemblies presented students with various recognitions from achievements throughout the year. The presentation of athletic letters, most valuable player awards, and citizenship awards highlighted a successful year in all student endeavors. YRAC 68, eagerly anticipated and expected, was given to seniors and staff members during a special assembly, culminating the school year.

Awards Assembly: Prelude to the Finale

His head in the clouds, Steve Uzzell has eyes for nothing but his coveted monogram.

Irene Hill is awarded the citizenship award from S.C.A. President Buddy Tucker.

Overcome by their curiosity, senior sponsors Mrs. Crook and Mrs. Thomas delve into their gift annuals before the presentations are concluded.

The setting may be oriental, but Cary students engage in an all-American activity, the prom.

Elizabeth Calwell, Missy Sloan, Kelly Lane, and Barbara Wilson live the evening as sword dancers at the Junior-Senior.

Play and Prom—

Linda Tripp, using her innate charisma, holds both her fellow Thespians, David Braxton and Carolyn Penny, in rapt attention.

Momentos for Posterity

Mike Gabriel and Sharon Bond revive James Thurber's old favorite, The Male Animal.

For young Jeff Johnson, the ceremonies finish none too soon.

For Better or for Worse— The End

Graduation speakers include: Rev. Ralph Teasley, Dr. Kenneth Keller, Mr. John Stevens, Mr. Nick Galifianakis, Mr. R. H. Forrest, Dr. Roger Crook, and Jim Parsons.

Jimmy Parsons gives his farewell address as president of the Senior class.

Will Blomqvist displays sentiments in keeping with the ethereal atmosphere.

Congratulations ringing in her ears, Sandra Campbell strides forward to accept her diploma

Spirit Ebbs and Revives in an Engulfing Torrent

Gary Moras and Jim Barrett let down the guise of tough athletes for a brief moment to the chagrin of the Cary Imp.

Weary from the vigorous activity of decorating for School Spirit Week, Judy Weaver grabs a quick nap in a rather incongruous spot.

Beverly Cotten and Linda Tripp display another of their many and varied talents at a spirit booster produced by the dramatics classes for Spirit Week.

Coach Lane drives student enthusiasm to greater heights with his speech at the pre-game pep rally.

Vivacious Queen Adds Pulchritude

The dazzling array of femininity which constitutes the Homecoming court is composed of Linda Tripp, Jeanne Sugg, Brenda Sconyers, Carolyn Martin, Donna Godwin, Beverly Cotten, and Barbara Catching.

Accompanied by the stately music of the band, effervescent Donna Godwin joins the procession after being named first runner-up.

Second runner-up Beverly Cotten beams at the enthusiastically cheering crowd.

to Homecoming Pageantry

A brisk autumnal night, marked with enthusiasm over an exciting football game and nervous anticipation from seven young girls, formed the background for culmination of a week of exciting Homecoming preparations which led to a heartwarming return for all the old grads. The ceremonies of Homecoming, highlighted by the band's new uniforms and sparkling performance, were drawn to a close as out-going queen, Gayle Radford, crowned the 1968 Homecoming Queen, Linda Tripp. Donna Godwin was first runner-up; Beverly Cotten, second runner-up. The finale of the festivities was Cary's sterling 14-6 triumph over Southern Durham.

Gayle Radford graces Linda Tripp with the tiara, and thus, terminates her own reign as Homecoming Queen of 1967

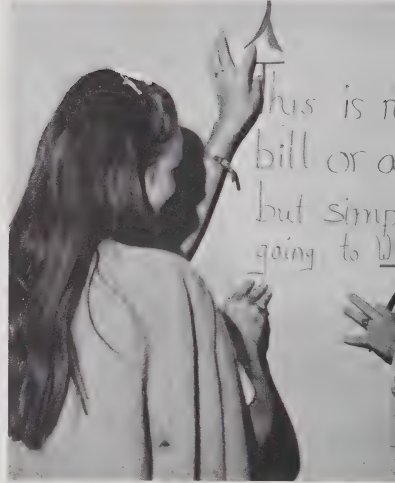

Exuberant queen, Linda Tripp, orbits the field in her newly bestowed role.

Students Adapt

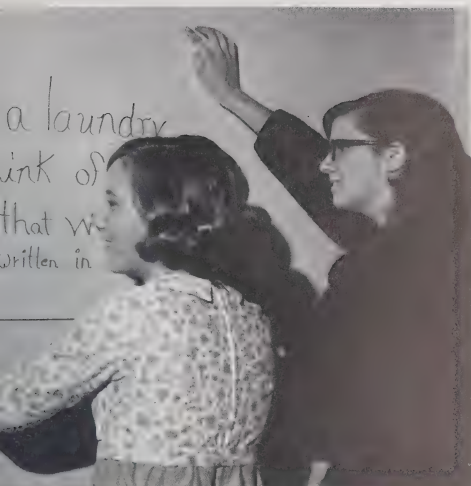

Partaking in the spirit of Rent-a-Slave Day, Mary Dale gets her man.

Pam Haley is caught at an unguarded moment, to the amusement of her classmates.

to High School Life

School Spirit Week is a time of frenzied spirit-boosting for Melissa Starnes, Martha Green, and Susan Smith.

There must be time for relaxation during the day, and for Paul Tomlin, it takes the form of a quick game of catch.

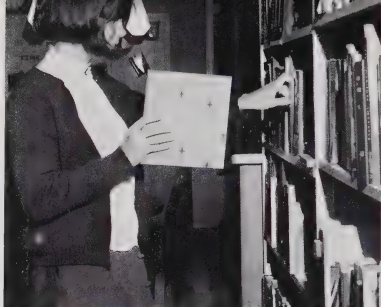

Cathy Cooper and Judy Weaver obviously enjoy putting on one of Shakespeare's greatest opuses before their fellow students.

Faced by the monumental task of compiling the annual, Judy Weaver, Bill Briggs, and Chuck Norman enjoy a brief laugh before knuckling under.

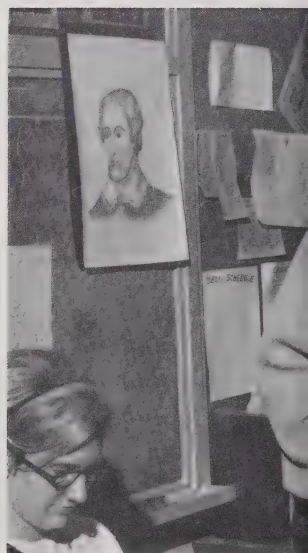

Elizabeth Berry sorts the incoming mail into the appropriate slots.

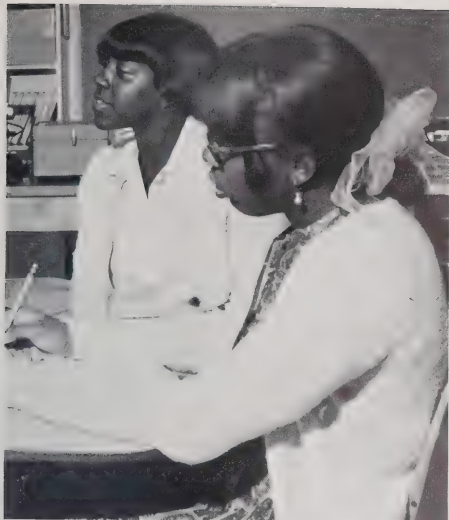

Mary Jane Ward returns books to the correct places as a part of her job as a librarian.

Faced with the prospect of dull study halls, Cary students turned to stimulating activities in which they were soon engrossed. Administering to the needs of the school or student body, they found happiness helping others.

Testing—

Lawrence Hardee departs on the enviable task of distributing tests, instead of taking them.

A student's life is beset with testing from his neophyte years as a freshman till the advent of the award of his diploma. A student is tested to get in high school; he is tested as a requisite for graduation. Freshmen labored through California Mental Achievement tests, IQ tests, and vocational tests. Sophomores were challenged by mental ability tests and increased class loads. The PSAT, California Achievement, National Merit, and SAT tests played vital roles in the evaluation and stimulation of Juniors. Seniors, planning on an imminent career or furtherance of education, took SAT and Achievement tests to conclude their high school years of testing.

Undaunted by the merry-making behind them, Pam Sconyers and Dan Thorne maintain their full concentration on their respective achievement tests.

Source of Trial and Tribulation

These are the times that sorely try mens' souls.

Emerging eye sore and brain weary from a test, Jimmy Barrett, Barry Keisler, Frank Bland, Nancy Doran, and Lane Toomey, nevertheless manage a quick smile.

Accolades have always been the result of the extraordinary achievement of CHS students. Offices in organizations on local, county, and state levels, National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists, outstanding athletes, meritorious scholars, and scholarship finalists were all to be found in the ranks of the Cary High populace. Cary led in percentage of leaders and scholastic honors when compared with other schools in its class. It was a small wonder when one considered the emphasis placed on excellence in all endeavors, as evinced in the motto, "Better than the Best."

CURRICULUM

Student-teacher relations are the basis of education; But a computer or teaching machine can relate facts, figures, and concepts.

The true value of education is the applicability of procured knowledge to the world one is, of necessity, a part.

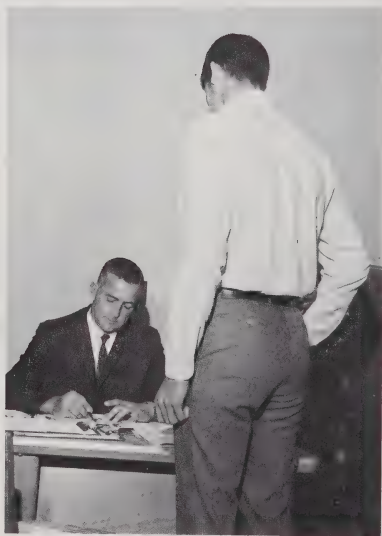

At such time as a teacher can relate a student's learning into everyday experience, teaching stops and education begins.

In one of his many duties as assistant principal, Mr. Lane readmits Randy Smith to school after an absence.

The complexities inherent with handling a burgeoning institution like Cary High School required capable, competent administrative personnel. County officials to custodians—all played a vital role in the smooth operation of the learning institute of C.H.S. To relieve the work load of the previously burdened principal, an assistant principal was added to the staff. The thankless jobs of organizing, administrating, and maintaining the school were performed without question or qualm, leading to a very successful school year.

Solving Problems

Like a rudder on a ship, the guidance department steered the studies of students of the school, from seniors anticipating graduation to sophomores trying to plot their high school journey. The excellent staff helped sophomores outline their courses, and prepare for further high school study. Juniors were counseled on the challenges of tests, such as the PSAT, California Achievement Test, National Merit Scholarship Test, and SAT. Seniors were guided in applications to the colleges of their choice, and aided in their plans for graduation.

From the outset of the year, group participation and togetherness were wrought by the tournaments and intramural activities. Young men and women grew in stature as they were challenged by the rigors of athletic contests—a challenge they accepted and overcame.

In expensive new green and white uniforms, the band brought enthusiasm and spirit to the football games in the fall through delightful halftimes shows and zealous cheering. Following football season, the band turned to practice for the concert season. The resulting two concerts were highly successful.

Addition of Juniors

Those courses in the curriculum that have no general nomenclature, yet fill a void between the academical and vocational, played an important role in the liberal education of students—important because they encouraged creativity and expression of ideas.

Art, Journalism, Creative Writing, and Speech classes challenged students to express themselves with hands, mouths, and minds. World Literature classes read and discussed works of great men—books ranging from the Bible to those of Sartre. A consummate reading lab, the newest addition to the department, offered students a chance to improve their reading skills.

What is English? English is reading a literature book, studying grammar, analyzing characters, writing papers and themes, researching a source theme, doing book reports, and sometimes, falling asleep—all of this contained in one single course. Being so much, it is essential to know what English does for a person. English brings a person in contact with the minds of other people, of different environments and ages. Out of this contact grows a broadened knowledge of the world of which the student is, of necessity, a part. Out of this contact comes an asset more valuable than Chaucer, Dickens, or a participial phrase—the priceless ability to communicate with other people.

Language is the reasoning by which people communicate. Students, finding themselves in a world no longer limited to the visible boundaries of their community, realized the important role the study of a foreign language played. The teaching of foreign language, such as French and Spanish, equipped students for future contact with people of other lands and heritages. In many cases, the study of a foreign language added to the student's comprehension of his own language, English.

The quadrennial furor of campaigning and politicking known as national elections gripped the social studies classes of C.H.S. On the eve of Election Day a mock election was held in the student body. The resulting decision of the students foreboded the one the nation would make shortly. The students chose Nixon. With a curriculum broadened by the addition of U.S. Government and a staff of competent instructors, the Social Studies Department challenged students, proving that the study of history has a vibrant relevancy to the history presently being made.

The new vocations springing up in the science world of today brought more emphasis on the science department than in any previous year. Through trial and error, usually more of the latter, the science students ardently attempted to master the mysteries of the universe. The experience gained was invaluable, from the first startling confrontation with a formalized crawfish to the minor frustration of the intricate pulley system breaking before it was sketched. Yet thanks to the fine faculty, the students left the classes with a bit more knowledge about the wide world of science.

Interests and Abilities

With the intricacies of the world locked in mathematical enigmae, Cary High School offered math courses for students to use as keys in their future life. Oriented to the individual's own needs and abilities, the instructors of the talented department presented practical applications of math, as well as the modern theories basic to the nation's advancement to the moon and beyond. From the problems of compound interest to the essential tautologies of geometry and trigonometry, the faculty constantly challenged all students both in class and out. The result—a complete comprehensive mathematical background for each student.

Business Classes

Anxious demands of students who chose to pursue a career coupled with the business world were answered by a plethora of modern business courses. Drafting

The expanding technical knowledge of today requires skilled, competent draftsmen. In response to this demand, Cary High School's thorough vocational department offered two years of drafting. The skill imparted from this training prepared young draftsmen for a rewarding future.

Electronics opportunities at CHS are among the finest anywhere. Several thousands of dollars worth of equipment and materials provided educational opportunities paramount to that of vocational schools. Coupled with practical knowledge gained from repair work, students received a working knowledge of the world of electronics.

"Dad" Dunham—Patriarch Retires

For many years, one of the strong points of the Cary school system has been the fine leadership of "Dad" Dunham. Ever a sagacious voice on the faculty, stemming from a plethora of personal contact and experience, Mr. Dunham enjoys the distinguished position of senior member of the faculty. The dynamism of his sponsorship has been the founding and success factors behind the FFA. Since its initiation, Mr. Dunham has led dedicated students through a fertile and beneficial membership.

His congenial nature and vast experiences led many to call on him to fill speaker's podiums and act as master-of-ceremonies. Most notably, he spoke at the graduation for the Class of '69—a year which proved to be his last at CHS. All good things must come to an end, and so it was with his teaching career. "Dad" Dunham stepped down from a fruitful career to the start of retirement. Retirement is the proper word, but knowing his energy, his temperament, and his desire to associate with people, it is doubtful that he will fall into dormant inactivity. To whatever he chooses to do, he carries into it a virility and youthful ambition which will ultimately spell success.

Teachers Versatile

Despite growing convictions among students to the opposite, CHS faculty members exhibited many homo sapien characteristics, among them an addiction to various hobbies. Artists, skydivers, cowboys, and musicians graced the ranks of CHS teachers as twilight double identities. Transcending stimulation of eager, receptive students' minds, our faculty carried their diverse talents into a full spectrum of hobbies from antique collecting to rodeo riding. All goes to refute a prevalent philosophy that teachers just are not human.

EXTRACURRICULUM

Experience does not end at the level of the classroom.

It extends into the extra-curricular.

Responsibilities expanded, leadership recognized and developed, knowledge gained, challenges explored and obviated—such is the developmental effects of participation in student activities.

Friendship, respect, pride, determination, experience—all are valuable assets of student extra-curricular participation.

Academic excellence has always been an integral aim of CHS. Outstanding scholastic achievement was perceptible by inspecting the quantity and quality of the membership of the Beta Club. Betas were rewarded for their industrious efforts by a brief holiday at the state convention in Asheville.

FBLA, FTA Active in All

Ricky Talton chastises Jace Buchanan for unladylike behavior during FBFA initiation.

Vital and resurgent, the Future Business Leaders of America gained eminence as one of the most patronized, supported organizations in the extra-curricular program. New members faced the rigors of an ensuing initiation which proved exciting and colorful. Having reorganized for the year, FBFA members undertook several projects to raise money to meet the expenses of a state-wide convention held late in the school year. One of the most successful facets of the FBFA program was the excellence of guest speakers attained for monthly meetings. Their ideas stimulated FBFA'ers onto increased insight into a challenging business world.

The Future Teachers of America, nurtured by progressive, energetic leadership, expanded into a vital part of the extra-curricular program. FTA'ers, goaded by a club merit system, aided and assisted teachers in the tasks actuated by the demands of increased class loads. During Teacher Appreciation Week, FTA members, along with the rest of the school, expressed their gratitude to the teachers of CHS by a teachers' tea, open house, and student teacher day. Student-of-the-Month awards, initiated by FTA, brought more emphasis on citizenship at CHS.

Clubs Present Students With a Glimpse

Striving to combine school-work and on-the-job training, ICT students met to discuss mutual achievements and problems in their endeavors to prepare themselves for the business world. Vocational Industrial Clubs of America claimed much accomplishment in its constant effort to guide CHS students who took advantage of the opportunity of working at industrial training during school hours.

Coupled with the Distributive Education program, a DE Club helped further students' knowledge and interests in the world of supply and demand retailing. A variety of conventions presented encounters with DE members throughout the state.

Banquets and Fair

In its first year of organization, the Cary High Electronics Club, "CHEC," showed promise of an exciting, active future. Guest speakers, field trips, and repair work all helped further stimulate the interests of students in electronics. The club should prove a valuable asset to the extra-curricular program of Cary High.

Organized in the early winter, the Latin Club strove to enrich interested students in the culture of ancient Rome. Although a new club with a new sponsor, it was soon functioning as an integral part of CHS.

Authenticity was the aim of the club's Roman Banquet. The Senators, Latin II students, enjoyed the food and dress of the Roman era. Also less pleasurably engaged in the festivities were the Latin I students who served as slaves.

The club was revamped this year by dynamic new leadership. Among the renovations were the establishment of a new constitution and the formulation of a scholarship fund. Also, the organization initially sought recognition from the National Federation of Science Clubs.

In keeping with tradition, Los Alegros promoted the travels of two CHS students to Saltillo, Mexico. The recipients this year, Barbara Catching and Tim Turner, shared their experiences and slides with the rest of the club upon their return. A unique experience was enjoyed by the members in the fall, when they traveled to Greensboro to view several Spanish plays. Completing their year, Los Alegros sponsored the fashion event of the year, Fling '69. Models, chosen from club membership, exhibited their skill and grace in a display of beauty to the enraptured audience. This vigorous agenda made the Spanish Club one of the most rewarding extracurricular activities. Success, such as this, bodes well for the Los Alegros next year.

Enjoying the antics of fellow initiates, prospective Spanish Club Members relax before another demand is made of them.

Highlighted By Guest Speakers

The French Club, reorganized under the new sponsorship of Miss Regan, achieved major and well-deserved attention from the rest of the student body as they actively supported all school sponsored activities. The French Club won the prize for the largest poster at Homecoming, a sign of its progressive new leadership.

Stressing additional knowledge of French culture, the club afforded members excellent opportunities to further insight into the intrinsic qualities of French. A trip to Greensboro for the viewing of a French play proved an enjoyable experience. Monthly meetings were spotlighted by informative guest speakers, who brought France into the minds and hearts of exuberant French Clubbers.

HO Essential to School Operation

An essential part of an efficiently run school is a dedicated staff of bus drivers, both regulars and substitutes. The initiation of a Driver-of-the-Month program brought recognition to a group with a job usually taken for granted. As added incentive, a bus driver's license gave free admission to school activities, a trivial privilege compared to the responsibility of this demanding job. An excellent training program augmented the staff of competent drivers.

Keeping buses in good working order is a major concern of the Bus Drivers.

After an absence of several years, Cary again added its name to the national roll call of members of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Paralleling the athletic drive for "Better than the Best," a group of nine girls, chosen for ability but not lacking in charm and grace, formed the nucleus of CHS school spirit. Sacrificing time and effort, the cheerleaders created enthusiasm by leading pep rallies held at bonfires, assemblies, and lunch periods. With the athletes' desires always in mind, the vivacious group sponsored pre-game fetes and post-game feasts. The cheerleaders maintained themselves through Homecoming-mum sales and other fund-raising devices.

Talented Band Member Win Parade

Inclement weather necessitates constant indoor practice by Sandy Jenkins, Cathy Cooper, and Debbie Stewart.

Under the industrious achievements of Mr. Burns, and sporting new uniforms, the band impressed half-time crowds at Cary football games with skillful performances of popular songs. The group also hosted other bands of the area at Band Day festivities in November and performed at N.C. State's homecoming game. The Christmas season brought attendance to parades throughout Eastern North Carolina, in addition to a Christmas concert. A spring concert was the result of long hours of preparation and work.

Adding charm, beauty, and talent to the band's celebrated spectacles, the color guards and majorettes were a highly favored part of the performances. The skill was not an anomaly; it was the result of many hours of diligent practice. Their charm and beauty was no accident by any means either; it was the result of careful selection by eminent judges.

Co-operative Office Occupations offered training to Cary students in such areas of business as secretarial and managerial positions. Training was received by these students with the co-operation of local businessmen.

Also receiving training in areas of office work were Cary students who served as office assistants in the school administrative and guidance offices. These students worked throughout the school day in assistance to the main and guidance office staffs carrying out the many various duties which keep the school functioning efficiently.

Even without Mrs. Martin, the guidance office is left in the capable hands of Jimmy Barrett and Bill Johnston.

Hidden talent emerged as the Limelighters offered several productions for the student body's enjoyment. The first of the productions was "Trio," an assemblage of three one-act plays. Sensitive and poignant performances were perceived in the successful play, "The Miracle Worker." An excerpt from this play was taken to the District Drama Festival, held at Campbell College. To further interest and initiative, a trophy was presented at the close of the year to the member who had accumulated the most points through assistance in Limelighter productions.

Relieved of monetary problems, the staff relinquished the publication of the newspaper in December to the journalism class, who made practical use of their classroom knowledge. In the spring, two delegates were sent to Washington and Lee University to attend the Southern Interscholastic Press Institute. Literary Magazine Organized

One of the newest additions to CHS's extra-curricular activities, the literary magazine, helped fill the void in the field of cultural pursuits left by the loss of the fine arts club. The literary magazine gave students an open forum for expression of thoughts and display of creative abilities and talents. Contributions from the students were compiled throughout the year, edited, and published in a single issue. The need for an endeavor like the literary magazine was evinced by the popularity of its production among the student body.

YRAC '69 was plagued by inexperience. Graduation depleted the personnel and left the staff with untried leadership. But willing new staffers soon closed the void, and under able leadership, the production of the annual gathered impetus. The editors, photographers, and business staff had to toil tirelessly, to first learn their techniques, and then pass them on to their underlings.

ATHLETICS

Competition is life—one of the most basic drives.

In business, school, all facets of life—competition is vital.

Competition breeds winners and spurns losers, leaving the fittest for survival.

Athletes compete in body, spirit, and mind, finding in themselves a deeper strength—a will to succeed.

"For whatever a man sows, that he will also reap."—Galations 6:7. The fruit of twelve years of labor—years of devotion, imagination, and development—returned to honor the sower on a day designated in his honor—"Coach Ed Lane Day!" Stepping out of the role of athletic director and coach into administrative duties, Mr. Ed Lane left behind one of the most impressive records ever compiled in North Carolina. His continual strive for excellence, teams "Better than the Best," resulted in numerous conference championships for all sports. Paramount to the tangible results of a championship was the building of champions. The strength of Mr. Lane motivated the development of individual character strength in the young people whom his coaching touched. The pride and spirit he brought to Cary were displayed as an entire community turned out to honor him.

As the game continues, Coach Lane talks strategy to Captain Jim Barrett.

Seniors—

Expectations of a conference championship, in the terminal season of Coach Lane as football coach, were dented by a lack of numbers and injuries to key personnel. Excitement was the name of Cary's game, supported by explosive talent throughout the squad. The season's opener, against 4-A Enloe, turned disaster as the Eagles handed Cary a disturbing loss. The development of a successful varsity program hinges on the quality of the feeder system of athletes which is maintained. The Junior Varsity squad gave boys not ready for varsity competition a chance to learn fundamental skills and gain valuable actual game experience. The won-lost record, though not impressive, promised future success for Cary. The new additions to the coaching staff, McGhee and Cheek, made the future seem brighter by displaying glimpses of tactical genius.

Robert Hamilton makes a considerable gain around the end before being grabbed by two opponents.

rence Hardee, Frank Bland, Mike Thomas, Dannie Stewart, Bill Briggs, Coach Charles Maidon.

Frank Bland (55) and Lawrence Hardee struggle aggressively for a rebound.

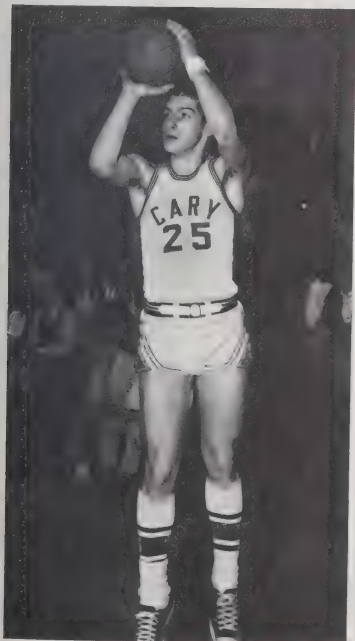

Season of Frustration and Triumph

There is one word to describe the outcome of this year's basketball season—sporadic. On December 7, the cagers opened their season against arch-rival Garner, but suffered a disheartening setback. The Imps were still not on the winning side after three games, but the team regrouped and proceeded to win their next five games in a row. Their next three games were picturesque of the entire season losses—hustle and spirit, but no winning results. The well-disciplined team again took the three losses on the chin and promptly won the next three in a row.

Even though their record did not show a perfect mark, the Imps should be commended for the hustle, enthusiasm, desire, and dedication in the game of basketball. Many members of future teams may be able to look in this annual and say, "They didn't win them all," but the basketball team of 1969 will be remembered for maintaining the tradition of a highly regarded Cary squad.

Uncontested, Bill Briggs guns for two at long range.

Tommy Jenkins foils his Henderson opponent with a sharp pass.

Bitter Loss to Roxboro Ends

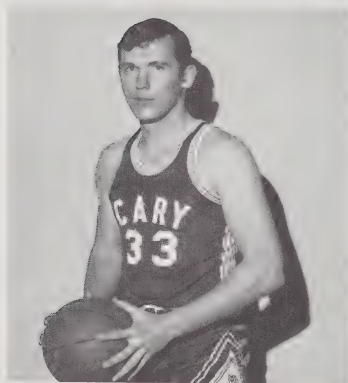

Seniors' Hope in Conference Tourney

Executing a perfect trap, Mike Thomas (43) and Tommy Jenkins stop a Roxboro guard in the back-court.

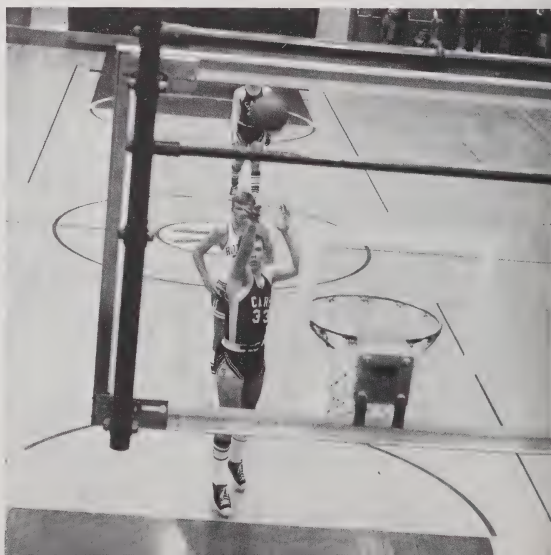

Bill Briggs

Dan Stewart

Dan Stewart concentrates on the front of the rim as he shoots a pressure free throw.

Bill Briggs pulls down a rebound and looks for the outlet pass to start a fast break.

As his players get a breather, Coach Maidon discusses strategy during a crucial stage of the game.

Jimmy Barrett

Lawrence Hardee

Frank Bland

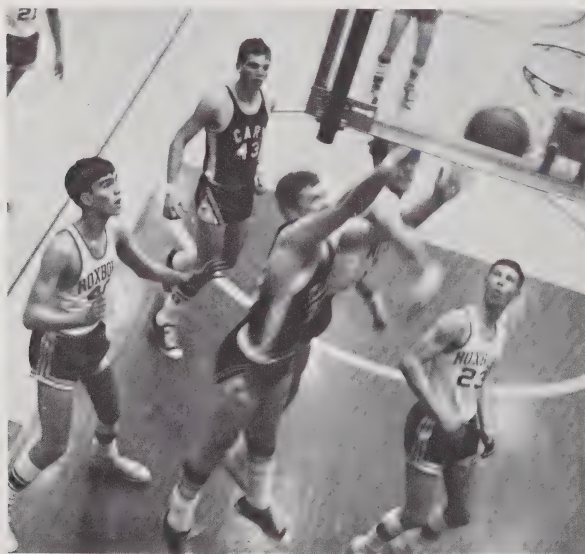

Frank Bland and Dan Stewart (33) make the traffic tight for a Roxboro player.

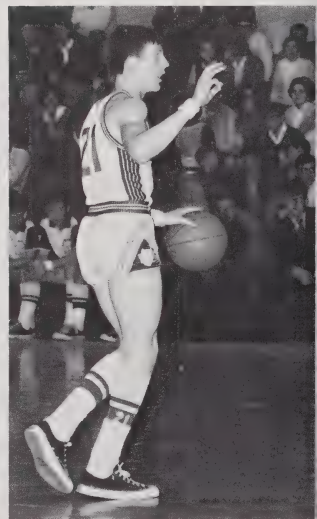

Frank Bland stretches high to out jump a Southern center as Bill Briggs moves for the tap.

Cagers Have Ups and Downs

Dan Stewart successfully draws a foul as he leaps for a hard-earned basket.

Tommy Jenkins controls the tempo of the game.

Mike Thomas watches his foul shot drop through the hoop.

But Finish Season Strong

Big Frank Bland makes a hustling attempt to block the shot of a Roxboro opponent.

Bill Briggs finds an open shot as he fires for two.

J.V.'s Advance to Conference

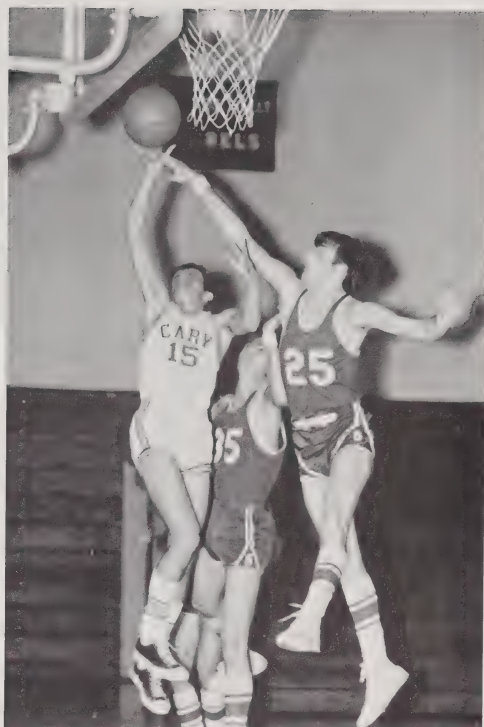

Stan Lucas leads the pack as he drives for the basket on a fast break.

Continuing success of Cary varsity basketball depends on the quality of the feeder programs. Hard hours of practice at fundamental skills were repaid by success in competition. As basketball players, the junior varsity team matured as the season progressed, gaining poise and pride. Their hard work and desire paid off as tournament time approached. The J.V. team surprised the field by beating Chapel Hill, then Garner. This brought them to the championship game, which they lost by a narrow margin to undefeated Jordan. The raising climax of the season promised the varsity many talented players for the future.

Danny Thomas manuevers amid taller players to get an easy basket.

Mike Winters jumps high and mighty for a three-point play against Southern defenders.

Richard Barnett and Stan Lucas team up to haul down a rebound.

Experienced, Well-trained Wrestlers

Admiration from fellow teammates makes up for all the sweat and toil experienced in a match. Just ask Charles Prince.

Cary grapplers continued their dominance over the rest of the field. The return of experienced stars and the blossoming of new ones carried the team toward one of its finest seasons. Wrestling is a highly individualistic sport in which coaching plays a great part, and Cary had one of the finest in Ed Lane. His successor this year was Richard McGhee, who carried on the tradition. In this sport of constant contestant contiguity, where tempers flared, Cary athletes maintained their sportsmanship in a commendable manner.

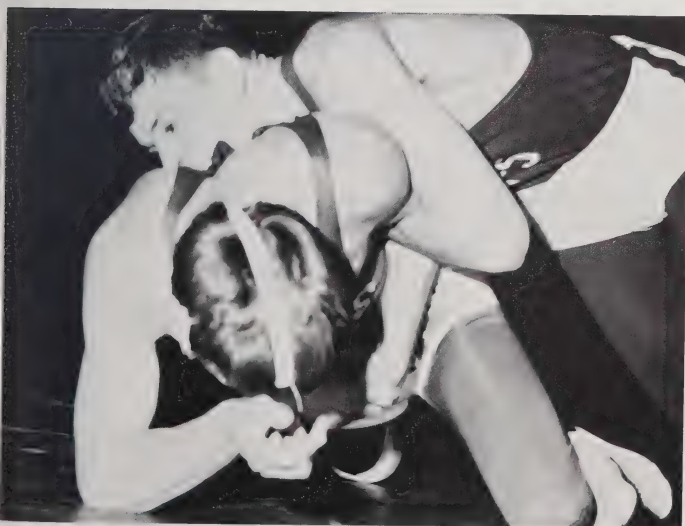

Framed by the referee right on the action, Tommy Hill grasps his opponent's arm in an attempt to move him into pinning position.

Earnest Cotton uses a half-nelson to roll his opponent.

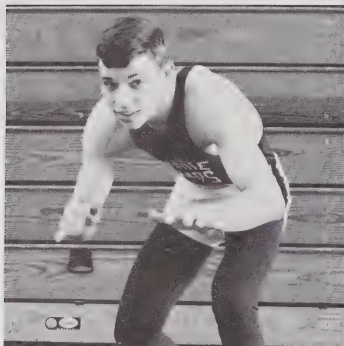

Maintain High Level of Success

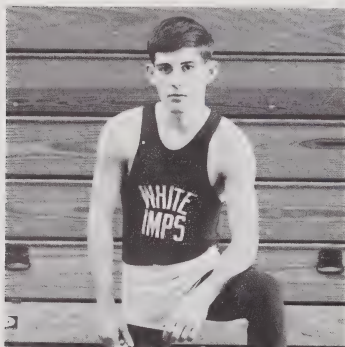

Pauk Kudyba uses his devastating quickness and agility to place his opponent in a predicament.

Cross Country and Golf Gain

The victorious outcome of a cross-country meet is revealed by the smiling facial expressions of Coach Kelly.

Cross-country track does not rank among the spectator sports, thus, this athlete is solely dependent on individual initiative and desire. The rewards were not tangible, beyond a wood and metal trophy or two; the greatest reward was the feeling of success by the individual through his achievement.

Prominence in Cary Athletics

Gerald Pollard displays professional form as he keeps his left arm straight and eye pierced on the ball.

Golf as a sport on the high school level is unique. Those at Cary who were fortunate enough to participate in this sport received many benefits from it. The experience of competing with other area teams left an indelible mark on the members of the squad.

Under the auspices of a new coach, the baseball team embarked on a new era of effort and enthusiasm. The strenuous demands of the staff for perfection in baseball skills and fundamentals and superiority in conditioning taxed the tempers of those who thought baseball to be a sport purely for enjoyment. Though the won-lost record was not excellent, the vigorous requirements led to a rewarding season. The comradeship and morale developed by the team strengthened the character of each and a firm foundation was laid for the rebuilding of a Cary dynasty in the sport of baseball. The experience and desire of the lettermen who will return next year, coupled with eager new players, can only lead to growing success on the diamond next spring.

Expectations High for '69 Team

Proof of the fact that dedication leads to success in athletics was evinced by the track team. Embarking upon a demanding developmental program early in January and participating in several indoor meets in the winter helped hone the abilities of the athletes under the whetsone of competition. Cary's dedication was rewarded when they swept the field to take honors as conference champions, placing several members on the All-Conference Squad.

Sophomores Career Under

After nine years of school, the class of 1971 reached the final stage of their public education. The sophomores began the year in a furor of campaigning, culminating in the election of class officers. Under this new leadership, the sophomores began to plan and work towards their graduation. To supplement their class treasury, they undertook an ambitious candy sale.

Sophomores became joiners and participants in their first year of high school. They joined various clubs, found their places in athletics, and, as the school year wore on, became firmly entrenched in the picture of Cary High School student life.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Dan Thorne, President; Anne Arbes, Sergeant-at-Arms; Chuck Norman, Vice President; Coleen Kempf, Secretary; Sharon Brown, Treasurer.

With two years of high school under their belts, the juniors entered the school year with energy and excitement. The class sponsored many projects, including a decal sale, a dance, a powder-puff football game, and the traditional magazine sale.

The junior year brought new challenges with new responsibilities. A greatly advanced curriculum kept the juniors busy. They found themselves in important roles as officers of clubs and participants in athletics. Above average students began preparing for college.

With the advent of the class rings, juniors enjoyed a new prestige which marked them as bona fide upper-classmen. They looked forward to the future equipped with the confidence gained from the experience of their junior year.

Lead by Capable Officers

The Class of '69 endeavored to make its last year a success, both academically and socially. SAT's and achievement tests were grudgingly completed by those students planning college careers. For those students yet undecided about colleges and careers, "College Day" was held at Reynolds Coliseum.

Graduation plans come to a head after mid-term exams. Speakers for graduation and Baccalaureate, invitations, calling cards, and mascots were all decided and voted on. The class picnic, Baccalaureate tea, and Senior breakfast, final assemblages of the Senior Class, were the prelude to the final event—graduation.

As the end of their high school life drew near, the Seniors were expectant as to what the future would bestow upon them. Faced with anxieties over college and vocations, the Seniors' fears were soon assuaged by the knowledge that they had successfully journeyed through one of the most important passages of life.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertising is a foundation stone for American economy. The law of supply and demand rules the capitalistic world, and advertising is necessary to influence the demand.

But this is all above the ideals of the annual staff who are fervently thankful for advertising as a means of financing this yearbook.

As these, the final pages of YRAC '69, go to press, it is fitting and proper that we extend our heartfelt thanks to all of those who have contributed to the success of YRAC '69. To Mr. John Stevens, for his allowing use of a room as the annual's own, and his many concessions to help the staff; to Mrs. O'Keeffe, for her continued support and enthusiasm; to Mr. Don Felty, for untold hours of work in the darkroom developing pictures, and aiding in photography; to members of the faculty, for their understanding and sympathetic ears to our excuses for absence or tardiness; and especially, to the Walter Thomases, and Thomas Weavers, for the use of their homes as workshops during the hectic deadlines, we offer our deepest appreciation for all your support and backing of YRAC '69. And to all others who in any way have made YRAC '69 a success, thank you.

CONCLUSION

Another school year, full of laughter and tears, victory and defeat, accomplishment and failure, has come and gone.

Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors—memories are all that are left for them of Cary High School, 1968-69.

The essence of this year, though fragmentary and incomplete for each individual's experiences, has been put into this book through pictorial representation.

Perhaps, in the unforeseen future, when thoughts turn in reminiscence to the "I remember when's," YRAC '69 can be a stimulus to remember it like it was.
